Did you know that Pittsfield had two mascots—Romeo and Juliet—a pair of swans that made their home on the Suncook River and surrounding bodies of water? In the early 1970s, Juliet was purchased by the townspeople to keep Romeo company. However, it was not a match made in heaven and Romeo, as they say, flew the coop. Juliet couldn’t fly since her wings were clipped to prevent her escape to the wild. But don’t feel sorry for Juliet since the townspeople raised funds to provide a winter haven—not in Florida—but in Acushet, MA. She returned in the spring of 1972. By now, she could fly short distances, so she was seen around Pittsfield.

But Juliet was lonely without her Romeo, so Mr. Andre Hale, Acushet, MA offered a choice of 2 males for $125—if the town wanted to buy one. But alas, it seemed Juliet was alone the summer of 1972. In November 1972, Mr. and Mrs. James Olson, of Wollaston, MA, had a seasonal home at Locke Lake in North Barnstead, read about Juliet’s plight and agreed to buy a male swan from Mr. Hall. They wanted to do something for their adopted hometown.

In December 1972, it was time to move to her winter quarters, but Juliet proved elusive. She traveled up the Suncook River to Barnstead Parade. Mr. Harvey Locke, who lived along the Suncook River, had been feeding her, but it was time to move to winter quarters.

When the smallest channel of the Suncook River in Barnstead Parade froze, Juliet flew to Chichester. Unable to find open water there, she flew to Northwood Lake (Epsom/Northwood town line). This small channel usually stays open all year and her diet would be supplemented with high protein corn. However, poor Juliet, the channel did freeze this year, and she was not fairing well in below zero temperatures.

It was time to save—capture—poor Juliet!

Brave volunteers tried to capture with nets, but Juliet eluded them. Mr. Jim Dooley came close, but then the ice collapsed, and he went in the water. He was rescued, but by this time Juliet couldn’t fly because of the ice pack on her wings. But volunteers prevailed. Ken Magoon, Thomas Toule, and Luke Barton finally captured Juliet when she ran into Mr. Barton. After a brief stay with Mr. Magoon, Juliet would be transported to her winter residence in Acushet, MA where she would meet her new Romeo! However, before her travel to Massachusetts, she made her T. V. debut on January 19, 1973, on WMUR. Not wanting to ship the pair again, plans were made to prepare a pen for the couple so they could spend the winters in Pittsfield.

There are rumors that the “swan” that graces Globe Manufacturing’s pond is a tribute to Juliet. Is that true? Liz Dimmick

The PMHS Spotlight in last week’s issue

The PMHS Spotlight is wonderful and I hope The Pittsfield Post will continue this series as a regular feature. Alexcia Rollins’ painting of Medusa is lovely. It’s great to see that her art is inspired by her reading of history and classical mythology; and that she is actively pursuing learning to grow and enhance her natural artistic gifts. Thank you for shining a light on our young, emerging artists and for bringing on the smiles. I’m looking forward to seeing more of these Spotlights. MP Christakos

Lamb Souvlakia (marinate 4 to 24 hours)

As promised last week, here are the recipes for Lamb Souvlakia and Greek Potatoes. Both are traditional and classic dishes served during Greek Orthodox Easter, and all year long. For the lamb skewers, be sure to pick up a container of Tatziki (cucumber, garlic, yogurt dip) and either pita bread or Naan. Add the Horiatiki Salad to your Souvlakia and Greek Potatoes and you’re good to go. Hang on to these recipes, I have a feeling you’ll be making these over the summer.

1 cup olive oil
½ cup lemon juice
2 cups red wine
1 tablespoon minced garlic
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons dried oregano
5 – 7 lbs. boneless lamb, cut into 2+ inch cubes

Combine all marinade ingredients in a bowl. Add lamb cubes. Refrigerate for at least 4 hours, or overnight, turning a few times. Thread lamb on skewers, you can alternate lamb cubes with chunks of onion (red or white), green pepper, tomato if desired. Grill until meat is cooked to desired degree of doneness.

This is a family favorite, for Easter and all summer. We typically serve it with tzatziki, warm pita, feta, Greek salad, and roasted potatoes. When we add vegetables to the souvlakia, we often serve it over a bed of orzo with salad on the side. It’s great leftover, although we rarely have leftovers. We get boneless leg of lamb at Costco and the Costco tzatziki is also very good, just the right amount of garlic (and quicker / easier than homemade). If you can’t find good pita, use naan.

Greek Potatoes (takes ~ 90 minutes cook time)

3 lbs potatoes, preferably Yukon Gold, peeled and cut into wedges
½ cup olive oil
4 cloves minced garlic
1 & ½ tsp dried oregano
Fresh ground black pepper and salt
½ cup chicken broth
1/3 cup lemon juice

Heat oven to 400. Put the prepared potatoes into a baking dish (or a disposable, aluminum pan). Don’t overcrowd them. Add oil, garlic, oregano, lemon juice and season with salt & pepper. Toss to coat.

Put the potatoes in the oven – uncovered – for 20 to 25 minutes. Remove from the oven, and reduce the heat to 375. Cover the potatoes tightly with foil, return to the oven and cook for 1 hour until they are fork-tender.

If you double the ingredients, the cooking temperatures and time-scales remain the same. Well, maybe a few more minutes until the taters are tender.

These potatoes pair well with so many mains, but especially with grilled lamb or chicken or lamb meatballs. They keep well in the fridge and are great leftover, easy to reheat in the micro, or – according to my husband – they’re just as tasty cold, straight from the fridge.

Combine all marinade ingredients in a bowl. Add lamb cubes. Refrigerate for at least 4 hours, or overnight, turning a few times.

Thread lamb on skewers, you can alternate lamb cubes with chunks of onion (red or white), green pepper, tomato if desired. Grill until meat is cooked to desired degree of doneness.
