A Joyous 96th Birthday for Ethel Cochrane

Ethel St. Laurent Cochrane, sister to Leon Miller, just turned 96. She enjoyed celebrating with family, friends and neighbors from Rolling Green Apartments.

Surprise guests were Pittsfield Police Chief Joseph Collins and Sandra Adams representing the Pittsfield School Board. Sandra presented Ethel her long overdue Pittsfield Grammar School diploma dated June, 1940.

Ethel wishes to thank everyone for making her birthday very special. Corine Miller

Colored Easter Eggs – Armenian Style

Here's an interesting Easter tradition shared by our good friend Marty (Kazanjian) Brennan. Marty's father was Armenian Orthodox and she has fond memories of dyeing the eggs and playing the 'cracking' game every Easter.

The history behind this tradition: Following the crucifixion on Good Friday, Jesus was wrapped in a white shroud and placed inside a rock-hewn tomb. The front of the tomb was sealed with a heavy stone, and because it was the Sabbath, the disciples were not able to embalm the body properly. Early on Sunday morning, women came out to the tomb hoping to complete the burial, but they were astonished to see that the stone in front of the tomb had been cracked open. When they entered the tomb, they saw the emptied shroud, and were told by the angels that Jesus was not there. He is risen.

Armenians, along with most of the Orthodox cultures, commemorate the miracle of the Resurrection of Jesus, by re-enacting the discovery of the emptied tomb on that first Easter. Red onion skins are traditionally used to dye boiled eggs a rich red color (signifying the blood of Christ). The exterior of the hard-boiled egg represents the tomb which contained the crucified Body of Christ. Holding the egg in the right hand, one greets another saying, "Christ is risen from the dead!" and the other answers, "Blessed is the Resurrection of Christ!" Then, one person strikes the top of the other person's egg to re-create the sound of that "crack" which opened the tomb. The shell is removed, Continued on page 7

Growing Up In Pittsfield Easter

When I was a kid, everyone went to church. Well, at least it seemed like that. All my friends went to church on Sundays, and special Holy Days. It was just something that seemed perfectly normal, like going to school. I don't ever remember not going to church on Sundays.

My family went to the Second Advent Christian Church. My Nana, Bessie Adams, went to church twice on Sundays and once in the middle of the week. Nana taught us not to go to the movies or play cards on Sundays, the Lord's day. Nana always wore dresses but when she went to church, she wore her Sunday clothes, in fact, we all did. To this day, I can't seem to wear slacks to church on Sunday. Easter Sunday meant new outfits for everyone. Nana wore a hat to church every Sunday, but I only remember wearing a hat for Easter Sunday. And every year it was a new hat.

Did you know that Pittsfield once had a millinery shop? Going up Factory Hill, it was the first building after the tannery on the right. I don't remember ever going in to the shop but it was there. By the time I was buying my own hats, the millinery shop was long gone. continued on pg 6

Happy Birthday wishes to my Sister, Robin Grainger Blais. I hope you enjoy your special day!

To my constituents in Pittsfield,

This week, my committee met to hear some Senate bills. SB 223 allows recovery houses to be exempted from some requirements if they provide only 50 square feet per person in a bedroom, rather than 200 sq. ft in the whole house. We discussed this at some length, learning that this is actually a reduction in capacity, and the national standard for recovery houses and dorm rooms. SB 398, building code and fire code enforcement, reconstitutes a moribund committee as the legislative liaison to the building code review board and the fire control board. This should smooth future adoptions of code updates.

SB 460 simply updated job titles or pay grades for some unclassified (supervisory) positions, and we confirmed that it didn't mean anyone got an immediate raise, or the state would spend more money on personnel. SB 356, on medical benefits payments by state retirees, also had no fiscal impact: it simply realigned some procedures to agree with federal, so that the state's health plan would be subsidized as a Medicare Advantage plan. If anything, it will save the state from sending certified letters any time someone pays even a day late! All these bills were recommended to pass.

SB 397, on the other hand, was a very complex bill that went to subcommittee. It adopts the interstate compact on mental health counseling, similar to other compacts we've considered, but it also updates the interstate compact on the placement of children! We've been in that compact since 1965, and it needs some updates.

Cook's Corner

Two Sides for Easter Dinner

Whether you're doing a traditional ham for your Easter celebration or roasted chicken, turkey or lamb, here are two vegetable sides that are easy to make and certain to please. Even the Littles will love the Vegetable Gratin, our two grandsons call this 'Cheesey Veggie', it's one of their favorites. The Glazed Carrots are so delicious and doing them in the slow cooker makes getting the big meal on the table so much easier. Bon appetit!

Glazed Carrots (Slow Cooker)

3 lbs carrots, cut diagonally into ¼ inch slices, about 6 cups

¼ cup water

2 tsp Kosher, coarse or sea salt

½ cup orange marmalade

2 TBSP butter, melted

1 tsp finely chopped fresh sage

½ tsp Dijon mustard

¼ tsp crushed red pepper flakes

Place carrots in slow cooker bowl, add water and salt. Cover and cook on HIGH for 3 to 4 hours.

Transfer carrots to a colander and drain well. Return carrots to slow cooker bowl.

Meanwhile, stir together marmalade, melted butter, sage, Dijon and red pepper flakes in a medium bowl.

Pour marmalade mixture over the carrots, using a rubber spatula, gently stir to combine until they are evenly coated with the sauce.

Vegetable Gratin

2 cups fresh broccoli florets

2 cups fresh cauliflower florets

2 cups fresh carrot strip, thinly sliced

2 cups fresh zucchini sliced

¾ cup mayonnaise

1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

½ cup fresh grated Parmesan cheese

4 scallions, sliced

2 TBSP Dijon mustard

¼ tsp cayenne pepper

3 TBSP seasoned Panko breadcrumbs

Heat oven to 350. Microwave the fresh vegetables on high for about 8 minutes; drain well. Arrange the cooked vegetables in a 9x13 baking dish, coated with cooking spray.

Mix together the mayonnaise Cheddar, Parmesan, scallions, Dijon and cayenne. Stir to combine.

Spoon the sauce over the vegetables. Sprinkle the top with the Panko breadcrumbs (and a little more Parmesan, if desired). Bake, uncovered, for 25 minutes, until golden brown. MP Christakos

Deviled Eggs

12 eggs

Mayonnaise

Mustard

Paprika

Fresh chopped chives

Make the hard boiled eggs. Once cooled & peeled, cut the eggs in half and scoop out the cooked yolk into a bowl. Add some mayonnaise and a few dabs of mustard (not too much), stir well. Spoon the yolk mixture back into the halved egg whites and top with a sprinkle of paprika and fresh chopped chives. ENJOY! Jean Cram

Shop LOCAL

Many of you are familiar with LOCAL, the lovely boutique on Rte 28 in the Mike's Meat Shoppe shopping area. But you may not be aware that it's recently under new ownership. In December, Anna Williams purchased the store from Sugar Connors. Ms. Connors was looking for a new owner and approached Ms. Williams, a life-long, accomplished crafter, and after careful consideration, Ms. Williams agreed to take over the shop.

In three short months, Ms. Williams and her family made a few renovations, some minor 'tweaks' here and there; and they have been actively focused on recruiting new vendors and craftspeople. They showcase work from 46 vendors, all of whom are truly local – Pittsfield, Barnstead, Alton and surrounding towns. The store serves up a wide range of homemade treasures including knitwear, stained glass, soaps, candles, essential oil, maple products, handmade chocolates, jewelry, ceramics, wood cutting boards, greeting cards as well as new baby items, toys, clothing and much more.

Ms. Williams shares that many of her vendors are open to making custom orders as well; and she continues to curate a fine selection of unique and special crafts. The inventory changes every week and the store smells amazing! Be sure to check out LOCAL soon for your special gift needs. MP Christakos

The Morse Family on Easter Sunday

Easter Continued: We had new shoes too and sometimes got them at the 'beehive' where Maude Nutter sold shoes from her home, or at Montgomery's across the street from the First National Store, or from Barney's down on Depot Street. Women's and girl's dresses were available at Dustin's Dry Goods or Leone's Dress Shop on Elm Street. (If you found a dress that you loved at Leone's Dress Shop and either it was too big or you were too big, not to worry. Mrs. Hoover could work miracles to make the dress fit just right!) Men's and boys clothes were available at Barney's and Montgomery's. Mom enjoyed wearing the latest styles and loved shopping from the Spiegel's mail order catalog. My brother Art would get a fresh haircut from Leduc's adjacent to Dustin's Park, while I'd get my hair done at Isabell's Beauty Salon upstairs over Dustin's. It was an exciting time of the year!

When I was in my teens, every Easter Clifton Cram would tell me of the time when I was very little and he had complimented me on my brand new Easter outfit. I see you have a pretty new dress, hat and shoes, he said. 'Yes, and I've got new panties too' I said and lifted up my dress for him to see the new ruffled panties!

Some of my friends went to 'my' church, some went to the Episcopal Church, some to the Baptist Church, but most of my friends went to the Catholic Church. Pittsfield had a Christian Science Reading Room, too, but I didn't know of any of my friends that went there, ever. In my church, we had Lenten services but we weren't encouraged to give up something for Lent. All my Catholic friends did and, for some reason, I thought that was so cool, but not cool enough to do it myself! The Catholic women and girls always wore hats or beautiful mantillas in church.

In those days, Fridays were meat free for Catholics, and hot lunch program at school always observed that by serving fish or some other meat-free meal and we all accepted that. Some kids would come to school with the ashen cross on their forehead marking the beginning of Lent. On Good Friday we were released early and the Catholic kids went to their church for the Stations of the Cross.

All this truly fascinated me and sometimes I tagged along with my Catholic friends when they went to Catechism or to special services to learn more. I shared a bedroom with my mother until I was a Freshman in high school. My Mom told me once that, while still asleep, I sat up in my bed one night and said "They're all Catholic". Who is, she asked. "All the magnificent men in the world!" I said.

In my church on Easter Sunday all the youngsters said 'pieces' they had memorized, the older you were, the longer the piece. The choir sang special music and we all enjoyed singing 'He Lives' and all the other traditional hymns. The Easter service usually lasted longer than a regular Sunday, but no one ever complained about that.

Sometimes Mom would fix a ham with all the fixings but more than once I remember going to the Washington House restaurant for our Easter Dinner. After Artie got his license and Uncle Bing gave him a car, we would venture out to the big city of Concord.

Easter in Pittsfield when I was growing up was a very special day, and remains so for many.

He lives! Indeed He lives! Happy Easter! Margie Lank

revealing the egg white which symbolizes the burial shroud. When the egg white is removed, the yolk is revealed, symbolizing the golden joy of life and hope, the promise of the Resurrection.

The Recipe: Start gathering red onion skins now! The more skins you have, the more intense the color.

Remove eggs from the fridge about 20 minutes before cooking. Gently place eggs in a deep pot. Add enough water to come one inch above the eggs. Add the onion skins. Cook on high until the water comes to a boil.

Immediately remove the pot from the heat, cover. Allow the eggs to sit in the hot water for 15 minutes. Discard the onion skins.

Remove eggs from the hot water and place in a bowl of ice cold water for 5 to 10 minutes. Remove eggs from the ice bath, pat them dry and refrigerate until serving. MP Christakos
